

SUPERINTENDENT ANDREW EVANS

NSW POLICE FORCE

Andrew joined New South Wales Police Force in 1999. He has dedicated much of his career to criminal investigation as a Detective at Command level, State Crime Command and the Australian Crime Commission.

He was appointed to the rank of Superintendent in 2023 as the Commander, North West Police Transport Command a role he thoroughly enjoys. Developing Operation Waratah, establishing intelligence systems and tactical methods to identify and locate violent offenders on the transport network.

In April 2024 he was the Commander of Strike Force Dribs, the response and investigation into the civil unrest at Wakeley after a religious leader was stabbed. Restoring calm and community confidence quickly and placing 41 persons before Court. Formally he holds a Master of Business Administration and graduate certificate in Applied Management.

POLICE TRANSPORT COMMAND LED OPERATIONS TO ENHANCE PUBLIC SAFETY: ADDRESSING SEXUAL AND VIOLENT OFFENCES ON THE PUBLIC TRANSPORT NETWORK AND TARGETING WEAPONS OFFENCES

This session explores enhancements to NSWPF's oversight of sexual offending on public transport. New measures introduced to target sexual offenders have resulted in a reduction of 30% of sexual offending on the public transport network.

PC/
2025

25-26 NOVEMBER | ANZPAA
POLICE
CONFERENCE

POLICING
FOR THE FUTURE:
WHAT MATTERS MOST